Our goal is to make a positive difference through music — by using music as both a magnet and as a source of healing. HOAP is a multi-phase project, beginning with a documentary film about music and our mission. Through performances and interviews with music-makers from every genre and all walks of life, we explore music as a universal language and unifying force. HOAP is supported by a generous partnership with the Creative Visions Foundation. |   | oal is to make th a magnet beginning ough y genre and and unifying |  |  |

| Info: | Alley's House is a Dallas, TX based charity focused on empowering teen mothers through education. Since 1997, Alley's House has impacted over 900 teen mothers and their children. Our mission is to help teen mothers to achieve independence through case management, education, and mentoring. We encourage our moms to reach beyond what they ever dreamed possible, and we help them to step outside the cycle of poverty.  |
|       | Encouragement, positive influences, and support systems are missing from many of our moms' homes. At Alley's House, our comprehensive program helps teen moms care for their physical and mental health, safety, and wellbeing and develop into healthy and happy adults, thereby providing safe environments for their children. Towards that end, our long-term vision is to break the generational, economic, and social impact of teen pregnancy in the community. |

| Info: | Celebrating creativity and innovation between Britain and California.  |
|       | BritWeek is a non-profit organization, started in Los Angeles in 2007 by Nigel Lythgoe and the then Consul General Bob Peirce, to highlight the creative fusion between the United Kingdom and California, and now Miami. BritWeek was formed to educate the general public about the contributions of the British to California in particular and the United States in general, and to do other and various good (public) works. In furtherance of these endeavors, we host and publicly support a number of events open to the general public that focus on the British contribution to film, fashion, music, the automotive industry and science. | memory of her son Sam, who lost his life to heroin experimentation while a nineteen-year-old college freshman at U.C.L.A. Determined to turn her son's passing into a positive force for change, The Sam Vance Foundation was the motivation behind Sheila Vance's return to the optical industry and the inspiration behind Sama Eyewear.

Throughout the years, the Sam Vance Foundation has helped innumerable teens and young adults overcome drug dependency and re-discover life. Sheila Vance's enthusiasm and tenacity are contagious, and numerous celebrities, including Andy Garcia, William Shatner and Lynda Obst, have served as members of the Sam Vance Foundation's Board of Directors.

|                                 | Info:    | BrittiCares International is a 501 ( C ) ( 3 ) nonprofit organization committed to finding new and better ways to improve the quality of life for children who have been diagnosed with cancer. The inspiration of the organization came from a little girl named Brittiana Henderson who was first diagnosed with Osteogenic Sarcoma (bone cancer) at the age of 10 and later developed leukemia at age 12 where she fought courageously for one year all without complaining, and assisting other children with cancer to help them defeat the pernicious disease. Although Brittiana's battle against Leukemia came to an end, the efforts of BCI have not diminished and have supported thousands of children battling cancer and their families. BCI raises funds and sponsors community events to promote awareness regarding the rapidly increasing need of support for children battling cancer. |         |
