To paraphrase Shakespeare, in fair Verona is where we lay our scene. If Verona is the quite yet beguiling jewel of Italy, then Hotel Due Torri is her prized gemstone. A 14th century palace, the small luxury hotel combines Renaissance styling with contemporary amenities. Rooms are lavishly decorated in Renaissance and Baroque finery, with polished parquets and magnificent marbles-- with all decoration recently redone and well-kept. Ideally, this is the place for a weekend tryst as room size is in keeping with Italian standards, in other words, slightly smaller than its Hollywood or London five star counterpart.

The palazzo has a spectacular ground floor lounge and restaurant, Ristorante all'Aquila, where an entire evening can be spent lost under its Renaissance arches enjoying traditional Veneto dishes accompanied by wines representing every region of Italy. Wine menu and cantina is vast, collectors will enjoy the listings. Its accompanying lounge features live piano music by international musicians, and a delectable aperitivo (appetizer) menu with wonderful wine pairings. Due Torri's rooftop terrace boasts a spectacular 360 degree view, best enjoyed in late Spring, Summer and early Fall. Later this year, Hotel Due Torri will open its spa, a subterranean relax centre.

General Manager Vittorio Morelli is quite prepared and manages a multi-lingual, well-versed and responsible staff, as should be expected from a Baglioni hotel. Hotel Due Torri is located in a quiet piazza in the center of Verona and within walking distance to the historic Arena, shopping area and the famous balcony of Juliette.
